

Little Bobbie and His Pa

Pa and Ma Discuss Social Activities of American Men and Women, as Usual.

By William C. Kirk

SEE there is a picture here in the paper of a very pretty girl that is the grand-daughter of the king, said Ma. Her name is Daphne, Daphne Fitz-George, & she says that American men are too busy & that they don't devote enough time to social affairs.

How interesting, said Pa. I suppose the American business men will feel properly called down, now that Daphne has had her say. If there is anybody that has a license to tell a lot of clever grown-up men where to get on, it is a slip of a girl that happens to have a king for a grand-dad.

She must be intelligent, the way this picture looks, said Ma. She has a high forehead.

So has a grasshopper, said Pa, or a cow. That isn't any proof. It is really too bad about American men not attending to their social duties.

I never saw but many social affairs, Pa said, but the kind of American men that I saw at the few I went to, he said, kind of gave me the notion that I was more of a fellow than them, somehow.

I'll bet seven little Bobbies forgot to say that this young Daphne ever knew, & yet she comes to tell men how to spend their time. Can you beat it?

You don't need to get so worked up over it, dearest, said Ma. I don't suppose that anything she has said is likely to change your plans or the plans of any other American man. As a matter of fact, said Ma, I think our business men devote too much time, if anything, to social affairs, but too many of these social affairs are held near what is known to be a bar.

Don't get flustered, dear Ma, said I am not going to leave to change one move in your dear life.

I am not flustered, said Pa, but sometimes I get out of patience with certain people. I think that they are doing over the social thing even now, as things are.

The trouble with that lot of American men, said Pa, is that they are too easy. Look at poor Jones that was here with his wife the other night. She said herself, his wife did, that they had been on the go at a theater or a tango party every night for a week, & Jones certainly looked the part. Did you notice the tired look of him, and Pa. He is a man that works in his law office all day like a slave, said Pa.

Oh, I don't want to say anything wrong about going out evenings to tango parties, said Ma. I notice he is good enough to talk her, & you won't go. No, said Pa, I won't go. I went to go. If I were to start going, said Pa, you would get the tango craze too. There never has been any such start in this family, said Ma.

You are right, dearest, said Ma. I agree with you after all. You know I don't care for them tango parties. It is in the bill for my Easter hat, I presume, said Ma. Only $28, & it was $28. Who helps you save money, dearest?

I don't know, said Pa. Sweeney, I guess.

COMPANY L TEAM WINS BY 23 TO 7

A grand uprising in the sixth inning won for the company "L" sixth infantry team against a regimental nine from Fort Bliss, Wednesday afternoon at Washington park, by the score of 23 to 7. Up to the sixth inning the game was one of the best witnessed this season, the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of company "L." A home run, however, the result of a number of snappy and cleanly placed hits, took place in this inning, however, which settled it runs for the infantry club. The members of the company "L" team batted around once and half again in this inning.

Against the inevitable twirling of Harline the regimental team was able to garner only eight hits. Harline struck out a grand total of 29 men in eight innings. The game was for army championships of the border, each team having won one game previous to the contest Wednesday. The same lineup was used in the first game against the Gas team last Sunday in this league, was the identical roster that defeated the regimental team.

Thrill Is National Mainstay

If More People Were Thrifty, There Would Be Less Intemperance and More Happiness.

BY T. D. MACGREGOR

THRIFT in the individual and thrift in the government are more closely related than is often realized. Here is a great truth, a truth which it was high time several million people were beginning to realize. They cry for economy for the elimination of waste in government, and they do not practice economy in their private affairs. Only as we as a people become individually more thrifty—that is, more saving, more economical more conservative—can we expect economical legislation, our congress to be likewise.

Consider thrift in its relation to the industries of the country. If everybody should spend his entire income every year there never would be any capital for investment beyond that which is already invested; no new enterprises could be floated, no improvements of all kinds made, and the world's supply of simple and the world's income and the world's progress.

It is the habit of thrift that we would have more temperance. How genuinely useful the money spent for the 70,000,000 gallons of whiskey drunk in the last half of 1913 would be if turned into constructive industry now!

Not are the benefits of thrift to be measured in terms of economy, the steadiness, the industry, the sobriety, the respect for property, the respect for the rights of others, the respect for the rights of the community, the respect for the rights of the nation.

The national spirit of thrift is a menace to the community and the nation, the careful guidance by a sense of the true value of property is a safeguard to our institutions. Habits of extravagance tend to make the family, the community, the nation.

Society for Thrift. An "American Society for Thrift" has been organized in Chicago with the avowed purpose of promoting a habit of thrift which is the basis of good citizenship and community prosperity. Men of prominence in the city, men of means, are back of this movement, which aims to advocate a broad and sensible view of economy, pointing out to the people that as a great English statesman said, "Thrift is not meanness, but management."

The continued rise in the cost of living, unaccompanied by any great extent by a corresponding increase in wages, has created a feeling of uneasiness among the people, and it is this feeling of uneasiness that has led to the formation of the American family right-about-face in the matter of personal and domestic economy.

No Relief Yet. Perhaps the new thrift will reduce the cost of living eventually, but it hasn't. Possibly governmental investigation commissions may lead to that consummation, but there are no signs of it yet. And no other agencies have been found for it. Apparently, therefore, the present cost of living, with no hope of abating the steady rise in the price of everyday necessities, and so far, no way has been found to reduce the cost of living except to stop living so high.

It is not quite possible that in good old fashioned times may be found the solution of the difficult problem of living up to modern standards under modern conditions?

ELDERLY JOURNALIST AND AUTHOR IS DEAD

New York, April 15.—Succumbing to hardening of the arteries, George Alfred Townsend, well known journalist and author, died Wednesday at the home of his son-in-law, 27 E. 87th street, in this city. He was 73 years old. He came here two weeks ago from his home in Washington, D. C., to visit his daughter.

Mr. Townsend began his journalistic career in 1889, made a reputation as a correspondent for the New York Herald and World, and for nearly half a century, under his pen name of "Gath," wrote for the Chicago Tribune and many other papers daily letters which were among the most widely read newspaper articles of the time.

SAND DELAYS WORK ON DEEP SEWER. The work of sinking the deep sewer on Overland street, between Congress and Kansas streets and the excavations are in various stages of completion. A heavy rain, however, which settled in the city last Sunday, has delayed the work. The contractors are now waiting for the sand to settle before they can resume work.

THE CARE OF THE SKIN

Mme. Isbell's Beauty Lessons

THE best time to give the face a special treatment is before retiring, and the face should always be thoroughly cleansed at that time. Whether any special treatment is given or not. Massage is not always practical at night, but if it is possible, it has a double value during sleep. The skin will slowly absorb the massage cream and the improvement in the manipulation of the face will be preserved during sleep.

Begin the evening toilet by thoroughly cleansing the face with the cleansing cream, using for this purpose squares of cheesecloth that have been washed to remove any stiffness, or better still, pieces of old linen. After this bathe the face and neck thoroughly in lukewarm water. Do not use hot water unless you are preparing the face for a blackhead treatment. The only advantage in it is that skin, the only advantage in it is that it opens the pores, and the lukewarm water will do this as efficiently for an ordinary massage.

Pat the skin dry and then gently apply the massage cream, rubbing against the lines that are forming.

THIRTEEN ADDED IN CHURCH REVIVAL

Increasing interest has marked the revival service at the East El Paso Baptist church. Rev. O. J. Wade, of the Calvary Baptist church, is assisting the pastor, Rev. E. L. Milligan, in conducting the services. The church has joined the church through the revival and 12 more have made professions of faith. The meetings will continue until Sunday night, with daily services at 8 o'clock and 11:30 o'clock.

AMUSEMENTS.

"OUR MUTUAL GIRL" AT GRECIAN. The thirteen reel of Our Mutual Girl series, which will be shown at the Grecian tomorrow, is especially interesting. Margaret has one of the busiest and most exciting days of her life in New York. She sees the great St. Patrick's day Parade and thoroughly enjoys the big spectacle from her vantage point at Fifth avenue and Fiftieth street. She meets many prominent people, and then selects some more new hats from "Louise," the famous millinery shop, and some more new gowns. It is a great fashion series.—Advertisement.

"THE OCTOBER" TODAY. The Bijou presents today to the public, Dion Boucicault's masterpiece, "The October," which is a production in three great reels. That the Kalem players have done justice to the play in this excellent production, will be the verdict of all who see it. The story is well told and the picture in its entirety is fully as interesting as the dramatic rendition. It will prove a great show.—Advertisement.

DINNER-DANCE, DEL NORTE. The Paso del Norte will give a dinner-dance every Thursday evening from 7 to 11 o'clock. Dinner will be served from 7 to 9 p. m.; dancing until 11 p. m. There is no extra charge for table reservation, which should be made early. Admission, including dinner, is $1.50.—Advertisement.

URGES VACCINATION TO CURB SMALLPOX

Austin, Texas, April 16.—Another appeal has been made to the people of Texas by state health officer Steiner urging upon them the necessity for immediate vaccination to prevent the spread of smallpox, which is reported to be quite prevalent.

"There continues in Texas large numbers of cases of this disease," said Dr. Steiner, "Texas, particularly at present, has a large floating population and our intimate relations with these strangers make it imperative that we should protect ourselves against the ravages of contagious diseases. We can absolutely protect ourselves by recent successful vaccination against smallpox."
